About Event

Smart Vines: Agritech Meets Campus Grapes Off-Program Workshop – Italian Tech Week 2025

What happens when precision sensors, viticulture research, and entrepreneurship converge in an urban environment?

In this workshop, we'll explore Campus Grapes, the vineyard-laboratory of Politecnico di Torino, to discover how Agritech is used to monitor plant growth, microclimate, and environmental impact in real time—turning a small patch of university land into a scalable model for sustainability.

Speakers

- Danilo Demarchi – Professor of Electronics for AgriFood - Campus Grapes Scientific Coordinator (Politecnico di Torino & PlantZCare Srl)
Sensitive Agritech: from wearable plant sensors to data analysis

- Paolo Sabbatini – Professor of Viticulture (Università degli Studi di Torino) - Campus Grapes Consultant
Growing Grapevines in Urban Landscapes
- Luca Balbiano – Founder of Citiculture - Campus Grapes Project Lead
The Citiculture Case: why Campus Grapes speaks to the urban world
- Bianca Serito - Agronomy & Sustainable Development - Lavazza Group
The corporate end-user perspective

Field visit We'll wrap up with a guided walking tour of the Campus Grapes vineyard, including a live demo of Agritech devices and informal discussions with the speakers.

Who it's for Startups, researchers, ESG investors, corporate players seeking green-tech solutions, students, and anyone passionate about sustainable innovation.

Limited spots – registration required.
